LABOR DAY PRAYER

Good and Gracious God,
You created human beings in
Your image and likeness
and gave us dominion over creation to be stewards of the land and co-creators of Your Kingdom.

Jesus, You became one of us
and labored as a carpenter.

You ask all people --
whatever our state of life --
to follow you faithfully.

Holy Spirit, bless all workers this Labor Day.

May all our actions be
animated by Your love,
as we do all things for the glory of God.

Amen.

If the dignity of work is to be protected, then the basic rights of workers must be respected — the right to productive work, to decent and fair wages, to the organization and joining of
unions, to private property,
and to economic initiative.

 Please consider Online Giving!

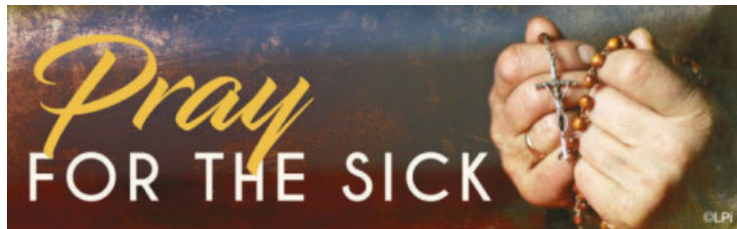

It'll help us financially, of course, but it also helps us run a better parish. Online gifts are easier to administer, more transparent, and more dependable.

To get started, scan the QR code here or click the green GIVE NOW button on corpuschristiphx.org and follow the instructions for repeat electronic giving to the Sunday Collection.

Regardless of how you choose to give, thank you for your continued generosity! Your support not only makes a difference within our own parish, but also throughout our local community!

As the Body of Christ — Becoming Disciples, we are called to serve each other in many ways. As a family of families, we know the needs are great. Together, we can do more than any one person or family could do alone.

BEWARE OF SCAMS!

We want to make you aware of various scams targeting our community. Recently, there have been scam emails impersonating our priests, asking for gift cards. Please know that our clergy will never ask for donations or gifts in this manner. In addition, some individuals may approach parishioners in person, asking for checks. We strongly advise against providing checks as routing and accounting numbers can be taken and abused. There have also been cases where well-meaning parishioners have used their credit cards to pay for hotel rooms, only to find themselves liable for damages or extended stays. For everyone's safety, please do not give rides to strangers or meet at gas stations to offer help. The proper way to assist those in need is to direct them to call 211 for community assistance or leave a voicemail for St. Vincent de Paul through our parish office.

Thank you for your continued generosity and care for our community. Let's work together to ensure that help is given safely and appropriately.

Jen Arnold, M.A. in Theology and Catechetics — www.CatholicHeartAblaze.com

Today is the World Day of Prayer for the Care of Creation, so it is an excellent opportunity to discuss the care of creation through the lens of our faith. There is a great deal of emphasis on environmental issues in the secular world these days. We hear a lot about sustainability, climate change, and whether humans can successfully inhabit other planets if the earth is rendered unlivable. However, most of these conversations are human-centric and primarily focused on environmental health as the means for humanity's longevity. The reality is that every individual human life will eventually come to an end, and all of humanity will cease in its regenerative process with the second coming of Jesus and the final judgment, regardless of our efforts. This is not to suggest that we should not make any efforts whatsoever in the care of creation; rather, as Catholics, our motivation should be rooted in the divine origin of creation instead of focusing solely on how it affects us. If we view issues through the lens of our faith, our perspective on the care of creation will be rightly ordered.

The story of creation, as narrated in the Book of Genesis, provides a foundational understanding of how the world came into being through God's command. Genesis 1:1 states, "In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth," setting the stage for a detailed account of the six days of creation. Each day, God brought forth different elements of the universe, culminating in the creation of humanity on the sixth day. After each act of creation, God saw that it was good (Gen 1:31), underscoring the inherent goodness of His work. While we are not required to take each word literally in a scientific sense, the Church asserts that this narrative is an account of real events, and a theological affirmation of God's omnipotence and intentionality. The beauty of creation — from the vastness of the cosmos to the intricate details of a single flower — reflects God's meticulous care and artistic brilliance.

God's act of creation was not a necessity, but a profound expression of His love and goodness. The natural world, with its diversity, harmony, and various forms of life, is a testament to God's creativity and joy in creating. The beauty of a sunrise, the sound of the birds, and the fragrance of flowers all point to a Creator who delights in beauty and wants His creation to experience joy and wonder. When we view creation from this perspective, it cultivates feelings of gratitude and reverence, recognizing that every aspect of creation is a reflection of God's goodness.

The beauty of creation serves a greater purpose than mere aesthetic pleasure. It is designed to point us to God. As Psalm 19 begins, “The heavens declare the glory of God; the firmament proclaims the works of his hands.” Beauty in nature directs our hearts and minds toward the Creator. It reminds us that God is the ultimate source of all beauty and that our appreciation of the natural world should lead us to worship and glorify him.

While creation is inherently good and beautiful, it has been marred by sin. The entrance of sin into the world through the disobedience of Adam and Eve brought about a fundamental change in the natural order. This is evident in the presence of natural disasters, diseases, and the general brokenness of the world. However, even in its fallen state, creation continues to reflect God's glory and goodness. Sin has also affected how we perceive and interact with the world around us. We can fall into a utilitarian view of creation — that it is something to be selfishly used for our human advancement and longevity. While it is true that God told Adam and Eve to subdue the earth (Gen 1:28), he intended the directive to be carried out in a way that cooperates with his divine design, as he also says, “to cultivate and care for it” (Gen 2:15).

Thus, with the view that creation reflects the beauty and goodness of God and directs us toward him, our motivation in caring for it transcends a utilitarian understanding. The secular world uses activism, policies, and outcomes to determine and regulate how we care for our world — some good and others not as good. However, our Catholic perspective inspires a different approach, one of stewardship. The Church views the natural world as a gift from God entrusted to humanity's care. In his message for the World Day of Prayer for the Care of Creation, Pope Francis says, “The earth is entrusted to our care, yet continues to belong to God” (#7). This understanding frames creation, not as something humans own, but rather, as a divine gift we are called to cherish and protect, as with our other God-given gifts.

This concept of stewardship calls us to care for and cultivate God's creation with wisdom, respect, and a sense of moral duty. Stewardship is not about domination or exploitation, but rather about responsible care and cultivation (Sollicitudo Rei Socialis #34). We are called to be caretakers of creation, participating in God's creative work while respecting the intrinsic balance and value of nature. This responsibility empowers us to use our understanding and abilities to describe, celebrate, develop, and care for creation. It's a call to recognize the beauty and goodness of God's work and use it responsibly to satisfy legitimate needs while respecting its inherent value.

As we face the environmental challenges of our time, Catholic stewardship offers a path forward grounded in hope and confidence, rather than fear. It recognizes nature's immense resources and humanity's ingenuity to face and resolve challenges. This approach allows us to look to the future with optimism, trusting in God's providence while taking seriously our responsibility to care for his creation. This week, be intentional about noticing the beauty and goodness of God's creation around you. Take the time to see God reflected in something you may have previously taken for granted. Finally, identify one or two small ways you can be a good steward of creation in a practical sense. Offer these things up in thanksgiving for the gifts God has given us in his creation.

Jesus is our savior, our redeemer, our Lord, and our God. Our belief in Jesus is what makes us who we are as Catholics, as Christians, but do we really know him as we should? Is Jesus at the center of your life as he should be? We invite you to make him the center of your life by joining us for Jesus: The Way, the Truth, and the Life, a 10-week video study program that explores the entirety of Jesus' life and what he means for us as Catholics today. We will meet every week to view an engaging video presentation by Marcellino D'Ambrosio, Jeff Cavins, and Edward Sri, followed by a group discussion and fellowship. For more info, join the Coffee Break group on CCCC Flocknote.

RESPONSORIAL PSALM

Psalm 15

*The one who does justice
will live in the presence of the Lord.*

Whoever walks blamelessly and does justice;
who thinks the truth in his heart
and slanders not with his tongue.

R. The one who does justice
will live in the presence of the Lord.

Who harms not his fellow man,
nor takes up a reproach against his neighbor;
by whom the reprobate is despised,
while he honors those who fear the LORD.

R. The one who does justice
will live in the presence of the Lord.

Who lends not his money at usury
and accepts no bribe against the innocent.
Whoever does these things
shall never be disturbed.

R. The one who does justice
will live in the presence of the Lord.

GOSPEL ACCLAMATION

Jame 1:18

Alleluia, alleluia, alleluia.

The Father willed to give us birth by the word of truth that we may be a kind of firstfruits of his creatures.

Alleluia, alleluia, alleluia.

RECESSIONAL HYMN

Change Our Hearts

by Rory Cooney & Jeffrey Honoré

Refrain

*Change our hearts this time,
your word says it can be.
Change our minds this time,
your life could make us free.
We are the people your call set apart,
Lord, this time change our hearts.*

1. Brought by your hand to the edge of our dreams,
one foot in paradise, one in the waste;
drawn by your promises, still we are lured
by the shadows and the chains we leave behind.
But...

Refrain

2. Now as we watch you stretch out your hands, offering abundances, fullness of joy.
Your milk and honey seem distant, unreal,
when we have bread and water in our hands.
But...

Refrain

3. Show us the way that leads to your side,
over the mountains and sands of the soul.
Be for us manna, water from stone,
light which says we never walk alone.
And...
